JEWEL CASE DROPS OFF YACHT

Mrs. Florence Dowling Victim of Mishap While on California Cruise

Santa Catalina Island, Cal., Aug. 28.—Jewels owned by Mrs. Florence Dowling, of New York and Boston, and valued by her at $30,000 were lost in the sea while she was yachting, it was learned today.

Mrs. Dowling was a member of a party aboard a yacht owned by J. Black. The jewels were in a handbag which she laid on a chair for a moment. The chair was overturned and the bag fell into the water.

The jewels included a pearl necklace valued at $25,000, a diamond brooch, $4,000; several rings, $4,000; and a diamond bracelet, $2,000.

Mrs. Florence Williams (Laloux) Dowling was divorced from Mark Temple Dowling, Boston real estate operator, in 1920. She alleged cruelty and abuse of treatment. They were married in New York in 1914.

A decree nisi was awarded in Suffolk Superior Court by Judge Fessenden after a "robby" hearing at which newspaper men were barred.

Today Mrs. Dowling was accompanied by an attorney. The attorney papers were impounded, but it was understood that the amount was large.

PRINCESS LWOFF PARLAGHY IS DYING IN WANT

Sheriff Ready to Seize Belongings of Woman Once Feted in Hub Society

Boston newspapers in 1911 featured the arrival here of the Princess Lwoff-Parlaghy, prodigy of Kaiser Wilhelm, society portrait painter and so wealthy her weekly board bills ran into thousands.

She was in Black Bay society, introduced last night by Mrs. Jack Gardner of there.

Today she is dying in a thirty-ninth street, New York, rooming house with sheriff waiting to serve papers on her, attaching her treasures to a $100,000 bill. It is alleged she owes a German, diamond dealer, the sum has been deferred owing to the present condition.

The Princess cut a swish in Boston when she visited here. She arrived with an entourage of maids, attendants, and a private plane.

There was the first and second lady, both undressed and she was body guards, a pilot and attendants, chef, maids and the like.

PINCHOT SEES HOPE OF HALTING STRIKE

Harrisburg, Pa., Aug. 28.—Having delivered his non-strict ultimatum to the anthracite operators and miners, Governor Pinchot today settled down to the task of providing a common ground of settlement upon which both parties may stand without loss of prestige or honor.

At the office of the sugar jobbing house of Levitt & Co., Market street, Harrisburg, the Governor was to continue his conference of yesterday with the miners.

From sources close to the Governor came the report that Pinchot is hopeful of arriving at a compromise.

SUGAR TAKES JUMP IN PRICE; ANOTHER BOOST IS COMING

Sugar went up in price today and another boost is coming.

And the "Sugar Bureau" can explain it.

Small stores today were asking 10 cents per pound for bulk sugar, 10 cents a pound for package goods. When asked the reason for the increase, clerks could only say "indignant housewives." The whole sale price went up yesterday 25 cents per pound for bulk sugar.

Refined sugar was quoted by the American Sugar Refining Company today at 74 cents a pound whole sale. An official of the company said the supply was ample and the demand greater than during the last month of August.

BRIDE OF 14 IS FORMER SUITOR HAMMERED OFF OUT OF GIRL WIFE

Denver, Aug. 28.—Else Jorgensen Suttle, fourteen-year-old bride, was murdered because she would not break her marriage vows for a former lover.

The murder is believed to have taken place in the South house in Colorado Springs with either a revolver or a hammer. While the slayer was hammering the life out of the girl, such his weapon, he pressed his knee on her chest with such force that her body was crushed in.

Jacinto Fernandez, Spanish youth, arrested by Denver police in connection with the crime, today defied an alibi getting in jail of this city and Colorado Springs.

LETTERS MAY EVIDENCE. At times during the questioning which occupied a greater part of the afternoon, the Spanish youth, dressed in a suit, wearing glasses and smoking a cigar, admitted that he had written the letters with that of Fernandez, reported that there was "marked similarity."

Sunday night Denver police received the third degree of Fernandez.

SECRET LETTER BOX. R. H. Suttie, husband of the slain girl, today told police he had suspected some sort of prowling about his wife's windows. He suspected her of knowing who the slayer was, he said, but when he asked questions, she was evasive.

The girl, it is now known, sought a secret meeting box at the bedroom window and each day the missives were exchanged.

This window has often open in the morning hours and police say the "black" note author went inside in the absence of the husband.

Police say they are confident of the guilt of the Spanish youth.

ALLOS MEET HEAD-ON. 3 COUNCILMEN BLOCK MAJOR ON BUSES

WRECKED O'HEARN CAR
Michael J. O'Hearn, Brookline contractor, died of injuries when his roadster was crushed in by impact with Flaherty auto.

The deadlock may be broken today in the City Council over granting the Boston Elevated license to run buses from Cleary square to Mattapan square, and to Southville, so that the trolley fare for Hyde Park can be cut in effect today.

James T. Moriarty, John A. Donoghue, Councilmen Moriarty, Walsh and Donoghue waged a sustained revolt against Mayor Curley's wishes for the granting of the license.

They were successful in delaying the vote sufficiently to give opportunity for a complete investigation.

SUSPECT ELABORATED. Moriarty and Donoghue (alumni) they were suspicious of rushing any through the Elevated board, and wanted time to investigate.

Walsh cast his vote with them, making it impossible for Councilmen Walsh, Butler and Lane, the others present, from passing upon the question at the last session of the Council.

Two petitions of the Elevated were under consideration, one for six buses to operate between Cleary square and Southville square, and another for six buses to operate between Cleary square and Southville square.

Acceptance of the motions, it is argued, would give a consent for any route served by the Elevated.

Hyde Park residents have been paying from fifteen to twenty cents fare.

Mayor Curley favors the Elevated, and took part in the debate from the floor at a special session.

Opposition asserted. The Elevated has submitted no service schedule for the district to be served by buses.

COOLIDGE CUTS LOOSE FROM CABINET

By COLE E. MORRIS

Washington, Aug. 28.—President Coolidge has abandoned all cabinet meetings for an indefinite period.

This leads to the conclusion that the President is now in a position to formulate and execute his own policy without the aid of his cabinet members.

While in the main it is expected that President Coolidge will adhere to the general policies of the Harding administration in keeping with his several announcements to that effect, at the same time he must chart a course in dealing with the various problems of international relations as well as the domestic issues facing this country and formulate a basic policy program on which to go to the Congress.

THROUGH WITH LOVE FOR TIME BEING MALES GIRL IN RING CLASH

MISS ETHEL POTTER

Belie of Washington street, Chelsea, indignantly denies she retained engagement ring loaned upon her by Benjamin C. Leavitt, for whom she says her love is as good as a broken shadow. Ethel, who was in court Friday to tell the judge all about her alleged romance.

TWICE REFUSE WIDOW ADMITS TO LOOK UP SLAYER JILTING FIANCE FOR DOCTOR

Maynard, Aug. 26—Twice thwarted in his attempt to have himself arrested for murdering himself, Mrs. Gertrude E. Pay, 38-year-old resident widow, appeared at Boston City Hall and filed intentions of divorcing her husband, Dr. Henry H. Burgess, a general widower.

The former fiancée in Floyd E. Smith of No. 11 Chardon road, Medford, for the marriage of whom Mrs. Pay filed intentions last April.

Mrs. Pay declined to discuss her romance with the noted physician, and provided responses to "good story" when the wedding takes place next week.

"The doctor dislikes publicity," Mrs. Pay explained. "We've known each other many years. I'll tell you all about it when we're married."

"In regard to the other man, I don't remember those doctors long ago, but putting it off, I sent them back Saturday."

"A woman has a right to change her mind, hasn't she? You don't have to marry him just because you've taken out a license. I haven't seen him in months and don't know where he is."

Both Mrs. Pay and Dr. Burgess gave their residence as 48 Newton street, Brighton.

While her former husband and another man was being returned by mail, Mrs. Gertrude E. Pay, 38-year-old resident widow, appeared at Boston City Hall and filed intentions of divorcing her husband, Dr. Henry H. Burgess, a general widower.

The former fiancée in Floyd E. Smith of No. 11 Chardon road, Medford, for the marriage of whom Mrs. Pay filed intentions last April.

Mrs. Pay declined to discuss her romance with the noted physician, and provided responses to "good story" when the wedding takes place next week.

"A woman has a right to change her mind, hasn't she? You don't have to marry him just because you've taken out a license. I haven't seen him in months and don't know where he is."

Ethel Potter of No. 131 Washington street, Chelsea, intends to sue Leavitt when she appears in court Friday to give her version of the story of the missing engagement ring.

"The ring was purchased by Ben Leavitt, C. Leavitt of Chelsea from Leavittman Brothers of Boston on March 14. Leavitt gave the ring to Ethel that night, and the couple announced their engagement. Three weeks later Ethel decided she wasn't a love and broke off the engagement."

Leavittman Brothers received an initial payment from Leavitt of $10. Having received no further payments, they want the ring back. Leavitt says Ethel has it. Ethel now she gave it back to him. Hence the equity action.

UNUSUAL STORY WITH MEN.

Ethel told her story to the Boston American today:

"I am disgusted with men in general and with Ben Leavitt in particular," she said with a toss of her head. "I went with Ben Leavitt for about a year. Just before we became engaged he went to his business with my brother, the time he gave me the ring I gave him a watch. But I paid cash for the watch."

"Three weeks after our engagement, I found I did not love Ben and returned the ring to him. The next day he withdrew from partnership with my brother, who did not know of the broken engagement. Later Ben mailed the watch back to me."

Imagine my surprise when an attorney representing Leavittman Brothers asked me for the return of the ring. That was the first intimation I had that I was an 'instalment chaser'."

"I am satisfied now that Ben Leavitt never was in love with me and that he could set himself for free because my father has money. He talked much about his own business success but now it appears that he couldn't even pay cash for the engagement ring."

Ethel says she is through with Leavitt. "He has been money mad ever since the war," she said.

"The sad part of it is," concluded Ethel, "I had the watch changed and I couldn't give it to some other man even if I did change my mind about the made of the species. The next time I'll leave his house to a patient."

A train Atlantic race for a human life failed when Dr. Edward C. Dismore, eminent tuberculosis specialist, arrived here one day late to save a patient.

The patient, said to be a wealthy Boston woman, died while Dr. Dismore was hastening home from Europe with a tuberculosis vaccine, recently discovered in London.

Dr. Dismore, who is president of the Massachusetts Tuberculosis League, had made a special trip to obtain this vaccine, which he believed might save his patient's life.

THOUSANDS OF BOSTONIANS SLAVES TO PET DRUG HABIT

ON WAY TO HEART COLLAPSE IS PHYSICIAN'S WARNING

By GRACE DESCHAMPS.

More than 20,000 boxes of aspirin are sold every day in Greater Boston.

One out of every three adults throughout the city carries regularly a box of aspirin tablets.

Aspirin, quinine, salicyl and acetaminophen are used continuously by the rich and the poor, the sick and the well, the young and the old. Aspirin, with an average sale of thirty-five boxes a day for the drug store in Greater Boston.

These figures are gathered from local druggists, who declare that the demand for aspirin constitutes the bulk of their druggist drug business.

We are "aspirin crazy," says a prominent Boston physician.

THOUSANDS SPENT.

And the druggists agree. Incidentally, thousands of dollars every day are spent for this latest panacea.

And we are paying the way for a general chronic heart condition. It is the physician to whom the matter was referred when druggists averred that aspirin had no effect upon the heart.

Dr. John J. Dawling, superintendent of the Boston City Hospital, agrees. "There is no doubt," asserts Dr. Dawling, "that the continuous use of aspirin would tend to have all effects. Minute doses, of course, do not appear to affect the heart, but continuous regular doses are far from a healthy practice."

"Aspirin and the other salicylates are coal tar products and they are all heart depressants," says Dr. Thomas W. Leavitt. "Their continued use is just as dangerous in the long run as any other drug having a powerful effect upon the heart."

"There is no doubt that people are working up a dangerous and unnecessary predilection for so-called harmless drugs. But in the main, these drugs should be taken according to the advice of a physician. The wholesale consumption of aspirin is surely a potential menace to the health of the community."

THINK IT IS HARMLESS.

The people who buy aspirin are not commonly in the category of medical drug addicts, according to a downtown druggist with a large retail trade.

"They are just ordinary persons like you and me who suffer from an occasional or frequent headache, brought on perhaps from smoking too much or working too hard," he answers.

"They don't consider that they are eating anything in the way of a habit when they begin to take two and three tablets when their head aches, or when they have some other pain or indisposition."

"They are under the impression that the whole thing is harmless and they begin to rely upon aspirin for a universal remedy whenever they feel out of sorts. It is regular, and what they believe to be a perfectly natural habit."

Quinine, by reason of its effectiveness in headaches and minor ills, is also a favorite with the drug-consuming public.

Acetaminophen, somewhat less popular, contains deadly properties which in certain doses causes heart failure, oxidizing of the mucous membranes and death. It is a favorite ingredient in many headache powders.

Bromide tablets, according to local druggists, slightly on the wane since prohibition, are used with confidence.

GIRLS EGG AS 'FIRST SHOT' IN IRISH REVOLT

London, Aug. 28.—Countess Markievicz furnished a diversion from the general dullness of election day events in Ireland. The Daily Telegraph's correspondent told of a last minute Sinn Féin rally at Harlequin at which the Countess told her audience that if the Republicans did not win a majority in the Dail there would be a resumption of shooting.

"If that's your game," replied a voice from the crowd, "here's the first shot." This rally was accompanied by a well directed egg which, the correspondent asserts, found its mark.

Although the newspaper correspondents who made the rounds of the polling places in Dublin yesterday found that most of the voters did not care to say to which candidate they had given their ballot, the representative of the Times unearthed one exception. This was a man who announced that he had voted for the Republican nominee, and when asked why, said:

"I'm an undertaker, and they do the most good for me."

The Dublin correspondent of the London newspapers estimate that between 40 and 50 per cent. of the electorate voted in the general election, which was the quietest and most peaceful that Ireland has ever seen.

Shortly before the polls closed a tour of Dublin revealed a slow and steady procession of the voters to the election stations. Among the latecomers was President Cosgrave, who motored from Kilkenny to Waterford in the early morning and later turned north to Kilkenny and Carlow, returning to Dublin last evening in time to cast his ballot.

Reports from the provinces indicate that the day passed peacefully. Only in Waterford were there a few old-time election day amusements. In that city the government and Republican brass bands engaged in a musical conflict, four of them playing at once.

NEGROES ANGRY OVER CUT-PRICE SALE OF PARK

New York, Aug. 28.—Sale of 225 acres at Croton Point to the Westchester County Park Commission yesterday brought charges today by Robert W. Justice, head of a syndicate of negroes which had been negotiating for the property, that the land was sold "at a cut price to the County Commission merely to prevent it becoming the property of colored people."

The park commission paid $100,000 for the land which fronts on the Hudson River and will convert it into a county park.

Justice declared his syndicate had collected subscriptions amounting to $200,000 and were prepared to pay $200,000 more on mortgage for the property, which was to be used for a park for negroes.

William Delavan Baldwin, president of the Westchester County commission, denied there had been any discrimination against negroes.

WOMAN CLAIMS BABY SHE HAD DESERTED

Worcester, Aug. 28.—Drawn by the urgent call of motherhood, Isabella McTigue of No. 511 1/2th Street, New York city, claimed her two weeks' old baby which she abandoned on a doorstep at No. 500 Lincoln Street.

The child was found on the doorstep by Miss Alice L. O'Leary, an occupant of the house. The police were notified and the child was taken to the Worcester Hospital while the police investigated.

"I just couldn't help it," declared Miss McTigue to detectives. "I saw my baby's face before me all day yesterday and all day today. I missed my baby. I was tired and discouraged and thought I could do better alone. But I couldn't and wouldn't leave her now for anything. I would rather die than part with her again."

Lifebuoy Soap

There is Danger in Crowded Cars
Germans are deposited by other hands on everything you touch.
That is one reason why children so often become ill after a holiday excursion. The moist little hands touch everything and are too apt to convey germs to mouth or nose.
Yet precaution is so easy. Take along a cake of Lifebuoy Health Soap. Purify hands and face at frequent intervals. Get rid of these dangerous disease germs before they have a chance to get into the system.
Germes are everywhere. You may pick up millions of them in any of the following places:
Street Cars, Subways, Railroad Cars, Ferry Boats, Sick Rooms, Tenements, School Rooms, Moving Picture Houses, Shopping Centers, Theaters, Crowded Streets, Stuff Offices, Lodge Rooms, Crowded Workrooms, Public Meetings, Locker Rooms, Play Grounds, Public Wash Rooms and many others.

Purify Your Hands and Face! Protect Your Health!
Tiny germs are attracted to the naturally oily surface of your skin in much the same manner that flies are attracted to sticky fly-paper. They imbed themselves, they multiply and they gain entrance to the body and the blood stream at the first opportunity.
Millions of germs collect upon a scratch, a bruise, a cut; and in many cases infection sets in almost immediately.
Keep these germs off your skin with Lifebuoy Health Soap. That is the surest, safest, easiest way to combat them. Lifebuoy Health Soap not only protects—it is one of the most soothing soaps ever perfected—and wonderfully beneficial to the skin.
Keeps Skin Soft and Radiant
Its generous lather of the pure oils of palm fruit and coconut carries deep down into every pore a wonderful health ingredient which wakes up your skin and keeps it smooth, sweet and beautiful. ABANDONED BABY SAVED FROM DEATH

LITTLE MISS "NOT-WANTED"

Police of Rhode Island are coming that State for harmless person who abandoned a beautiful girl baby on the shores of Hammond's Pond, Pawtucket, R. I. It is hinted that an Italian attempt was made to murder the child by drowning it. At first it was thought that the little one was the kidnapped Lillian McKenzie but the Rhode Island authorities, in well nourished, bright and lovable in contrast to the drab, sickly little stolen nearly two weeks ago from in front of a store in New York City.

Pawtucket, R. I., Aug. 27.—Rhode Island police are making a blanket search of the State for an empty baby crib and a heartless mother. The baby found deserted near Hammond's pond Saturday night, has proved not to be the missing Lillian McKenzie of New York, kidnapped from her baby carriage a week ago last Saturday.

While Miss Peter McKenzie of No. 842 West Twelfth avenue, New York, rode over the empty crib in her model's home, a lone infant that was not wanted by her parents coos in a friendly manner at the unfortunate inmates of the Pawtucket City Poor Farm.

HUNT MURDER PLANS.
The police are now convinced that those who abandoned the baby girl here intended to murder her by drowning in Hammond's Pond. Perhaps they were frightened away. Perhaps they lost their nerve. The police point out that the baby was tied firmly in a clothed basket when found on the shore of the pond by two boys, who heard her crying.

Mr. and Mrs. John H. Carpenter, the kindly couple in charge of the poor farm, are giving little Miss "Not Wanted at Home" plenty of tender care and fresh milk. The baby is in splendid health, a pathetic contrast with the physical condition of the much-loved Lillian McKenzie of New York.

ASSAULTS CRUEL PARENT.
"How any human being could do this to a baby is beyond my imagination," said Mrs. Carpenter to a Boston American reporter. "What a pity the people who stole the little McKenzie girl could not have met the parents of this unfortunate child, who has everything but love. The contrast between the two young girls and the love and heartlessness of the two sets of parents certainly tug at one's heart strings."

STOCKING ARCH WELCOMES PRINCE.
London, Aug. 28.—The bachelor Prince of Wales received quite a jolt on his tour of the Nottingham district, the little town of Blaine, where the chief industry is the making of women's silk stockings, erected a great arch and from the arch dangled silk stockings of every conceivable hue, and stuffed out with cotton so they waved in the wind.

The Prince blushed furiously as he rode under the arch, but made no comment.

BOY IS INJURED WHILE STEALING A RIDE.
While stealing a ride on the rear of a wagon owned by the National Laundry Company, William Gunn, eight years old, of No. 132 Fourth street, South Boston, was injured when a truck owned by the Globe Coal Company of Woonsocket, R. I., struck the rear right wheel. Upon falling the boy rolled into the gutter. His presence of mind probably saved him from death.

Much-Jilted Suitor of Chicago Girl to Wed Miss Joan Stevens of London

The engagement of Miss McKenzie to Miss Mary London Baker of Chicago in 1921, and the frequent postponements of the wedding attracted wide attention.

A few months ago Miss Baker left for England to marry McKenzie. Three times before she had agreed to marry him, and three times the respective bridegroom was left at the altar.

Greased by a few intimate friends at the station, Miss Baker, who was accompanied by her mother, Mrs. Alfred L. Baker, took time to let it become known that she was going through with the wedding this time, most positively and without fail, but when she reached England she spurned her suitor once more.

Young McKenzie tired of that sort of thing as his engagement to Miss Stevens would seem to indicate.

Amputating a Mountain of Wickedness

How Merciless Machinery and American Engineers Wiped Out the High Peaks of Rio's Vice and Gayety, and Brought the Horizon to Its Imposing Modern Sky-scrappers

Two Types of Vice—Dancing Girls, Who Protected in Vain—Against the Amputation of Castle Mountain, Because It Meant the Extinction of Their Night-life Haunts.

THE Bible says faith will move mountains. But it also says faith must be coupled with works. The Mayor of Rio de Janeiro, capital of Brazil, wanted a mountain moved. It was, unfortunately, a big mountain, which stuck right up in the heart of the South American city and blocked part of the waterfront. Immediately behind it was the business section, shut off from the water, cramped and hot. The mountain was thick with tenements and crowned with a magnificent old monastery. But that didn't stop the Mayor. He wanted the mountain moved. And, fortunately, he knew both the Bible texts. So he sent to New York for twelve American engineers and read the two

Rio, equipped like an army, with boatloads of dynamite, blasting powder, steam shovels, excavators, trenching machinery, cranes, hydraulic pumps. They even took along a whole miniature railroad, narrow-gauge, such as was used for transporting heavy material at the front in the World War—rails, locomotives, rolling stock, everything. Also four thousand pairs of good old picks and shovels. The only things requisitioned in Rio were an army of native workmen and a thousand mules. The first problem was to get the people off the mountain and wreck and remove buildings—many city blocks of them. That alone was a gigantic undertaking, not accomplished without regret from the and beside it was the city's astronomical observatory. But it all had to go—historical landmarks, bones of heroes, scientific observatory—along with the protesting dancing girls—swept away to make room for the growth of the modern city. The mountain itself, though small as mountains go, presented a tremendous bulk for "amputation." Its base covered a million and a half square feet, more or less, and the amount of rock and dirt that had to be removed and dumped into the ocean totaled more than 250,000,000 cubic feet. The engineers went at it with everything from dynamite and monster excavators down to the modest pick and shovel. Fortunately they found that the geological composition of the mountain was largely earth. Underneath it was granite, but this had decomposed, and there were many deep fissures. Because of this, they found their best ally was their hydraulic machinery—literally washing away the mountain with streams of water at high pressure. The actual work began a year and a best to them. "You see how simple it is," said he. "I'll have the faith and you'll do the work." "All right, we'll move the mountain and dump it into the sea," said the Americans. "But your mountain seems to be pretty densely populated and it's up to you to move the people, and you want them dumped in, too." "Far enough," said the Mayor—but it didn't prove so easy. On a slope of the mountain, freighting the water, were several streets. In them were located most of this great Brazilian export's dance halls, dives and slum cabarets. There hundreds of Spanish dancing girls and gay Portuguese maidens elicited their customers and enjoyed the cool ocean breezes. They set up a concerted shriek of protest. They had been promised indemnity for the property, but they didn't want to be moved. Meanwhile plans for "amputating a mountain"—and rather a wicked one, at that—one of the highest engineering enterprises in history—got rapidly under way. It soon appeared that faith was all the Mayor of Rio had. The Americans were not only to do the work—they were to put up the money as well. But as the Mayor's faith was backed by the credit of a rich city, the financing was easy. A Wall Street loan of $12,000,000 was floated. Leonard Kennedy became the commander-general of the undertaking, with Alexander D. Chisholm and Nathan M. Jones as chief engineers. Presently their forces descended on people of Rio—for on the mountain, the "Morro de Castello" (or Castle Mountain, as it was called), were many historic landmarks. On it the first Portuguese Governor had built his palace and fortifications. There the Portuguese pioneers, the "Pilgrim Fathers" of Brazil, had fought and repulsed the French buccanniers. On the top of the mountain was one of the oldest Jesuit monasteries in the Western Hemisphere. It was a legend of the city that many of its ancient treasures of gold, silver and jewels were buried somewhere on the slope. The hope of treasure trove was one of the things that made it easy to enlist native labor. Close by was the tomb of Escravidão de São, the great Portuguese hero, who expelled the French in 1565.

half are Every minute since that time 100,000 gallons of water, under a pressure of 100 pounds to the square inch, have been driving away at the mountain, through nozzles that are like the mouth of enormous cannons—each one twelve inches in diameter. Not even rock could withstand such a bombardment.

The work is now three-fourths completed, and by early next year there will be a level and beautiful space where the mountain once stood, ready for the laying out of new streets, parks and gardens, and the erection of modern business buildings. The people of Rio who hoped, incidentally, that the legendary buried riches of the old monastery would be unearthed, have thus far been disappointed. But a few months ago, for days of intense excitement, during which the Brazilian newspapers printed news of almost nothing else, it was thought the treasure had been discovered. Deep beneath the surface one morning the workmen blasted open the entrance to an ancient subterranean gallery, which led from the gardens of the monastery into the heart of the mountain—whither no one knew. The fact was communicated to the Mayor, who ordered that the tunnel be traced, but with the greatest secrecy. This apparently proved impossible, for before the morning was over all Rio was buzzing and great crowds thronged the edge of the excavations. The explorers traced the main gallery for several hundred feet, to a place where it split into two branches. They took the left branch first and found at the end of it a crypt, containing a deep hole in the ground, human bones and some valuable fragments of ancient religious sculpture. On the face of one wall was a cross of granite, which it was hoped marked the hiding place of riches. But when they drilled they found only solid rock behind it. Then they turned back and began investigating the right branch of the gallery. They were prevented from going forward rapidly on this side because of bad air. After two men had lost consciousness, the explorers stopped and installed a large electric fan at one of the right angles of the tunnel, using the wires of the dynamite squad. But they found nothing except further mystery—a huge stone that looked like a

The hidden treasure, however, was a side issue. The main object, "amputating a mountain," is on its way to accomplishment. It will rank among the greatest feats of American engineering. Modern science has made land where there was once open sea, and moved a rock-ribbed mountain that a great city may have better ventilation and sanitation and more ample room to expand.

Medbury Says—

By John P. Medbury
NOW that bartenders are almost extinct, the manicurists in temporal parlors have to list to us hard-luck stories.

THE average man who gets his nose manured by a pretty girl usually has a wife at home who isn't meant for him.

SHINS a great little wife, but they don't just understand each other.

WHAT he wants is a girl who'll be a pal to him.

HIS wife doesn't mind if he goes out with other women, she realizes that he must have a little recreation.

AND the poor manœuvreist has to sit across from him at the little table and "Yes" him to death.

SHEE has to look pleased when he tells her that she's the kind of a girl who would understand him.

HE tells her that she can have anything he's got and then when she gets through with his nails he leaves her a nickel.

ONE car had two fingers off his right hand and wanted to know if she would make any reduction in the price of the manicure.

WHEN she said she wouldn't, he made her minjourns two fingers on the left hand twice.

OF course, he didn't leave her any tip, but she was thankful he didn't take any money out of her purse.

Of course you know about that delicious candy, the chicken bone. With that confectionary in mind I walked into a candy store and said to the clerk, "I want a half pound of chicken bone."

I repeated my statement a little louder. The clerk started to laugh and said, "Go home little girl."

What I had said suddenly dawned on me and with a crimson face I walked quickly out of the store.

Rita, a bright, sunny girl of five, was asked to go to the store for a one-cent stamp. Returning she presented a two-cent stamp. Her mother explained that she wanted a one-cent stamp. Looking at her mother sorrowfully, the child said: "Why, mother, I thought you knew something." Taking the scissors, she cut the stamp into halves, saying: "There, you have two one-cent stamps. Take one and I will turn the other into the storekeeper."

THE BALANCE IN YOUR WORK AND PLAY.
Why do you go to extremes in everything you do?

Quite often you find yourself getting a tad and carrying it too far.

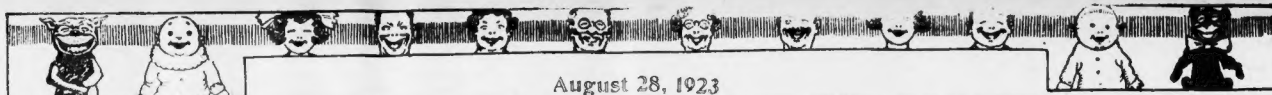

If you have ever studied suc-

Successful men take the thing thing for the time being.

They do not carry either side to

They mix in just enough play to keep them in good condition and out of a rut, but they do not engage in one line of amusement so long at a time that they have no ambition for anything else but to lie down and rest because completely tired out.

Be a "man of parts," thinking not alone of your own comfort and pleasure, but giving heed to others whose pleasure and interests should also be yours.
